

ASMA AFSARUDDIN is Professor of Near Eastern Languages and Cultures in the School of Global and International Studies at Indiana University, Bloomington. She received her PhD in Arabic and Islamic Studies from Johns Hopkins University and previously taught at Harvard and Notre Dame universities. Professor Afsaruddin is the author and editor of seven books, including Contemporary Issues in Islam (Edinburgh University Press, 2015); Striving in the Path of God: Jihad and Martyrdom in Islamic Thought (Oxford University Press, 2013) which won a World Book Award from the Iranian government in 2015 and was a runner-up for the 2014 British-Kuwaiti Friendship Society Book Prize; and The First Muslims: History and Memory (OneWorld Publications 2008), which was recently translated into Turkish. She has also written over fifty research articles and book chapters on various aspects of Islamic thought and lectures widely in the US, Europe, and the Middle East. Afsaruddin is currently a member of the academic council of the Prince al-Waleed Center for Muslim-Christian Understanding at Georgetown University and of the Board of Directors of the American Academy of Religion and serves as Chair of the Board of Directors of the Center for the Study of Islam and Democracy in Washington DC. She was previously the Kraemer Middle East Distinguished Scholar-in-Residence at the College of William and Mary and has served as a consultant for the Pew Forum on Religion and Public Life and other non-governmental and governmental agencies. Her research has been funded by grants from the Harry Frank Guggenheim Foundation and the Carnegie Corporation of New York, which named her a Carnegie Scholar in 2005.

Links: www.aarweb.org

<https://www.csionline.org/>